Herstory: Women Leaders of Today

Located in Miller Hall, this community provides a space for women to interact with and live amongst other women who share a passion for issues related to gender and women's empowerment. Residents will have an opportunity to share their story and learn from others, working to foster an environment of mutual empowerment. Through intentional programming, conference participation, and various other opportunities, residents of the floor will have experiences that better prepare them to join the business world and will realize the important contributions women offer to the local, national and global community.

Students living in this community will:

- Gain confidence in sharing their story as a women leader.
- Engage in meaningful conversations about women's history and the importance of further advancement.
- Explore personal leadership style, confidence, gender diversity, and contemporary workplace issues.

This community is one of the best parts about coming to Bentley. It has provided me with lifelong friends and connections to like-minded women, and the chance to become more involved in leadership activities.
